

APPRECIATION OF INJUSTICE

149

The Psalms are inspired by these messages of comfort: for centuries they have calmed the distressed and strengthened the faint-hearted amongst every denomination of Christians in every country of Europe. Christianity offers a more substantial solace : the wrongs of this life will be redressed hereafter : even the iniustices of death are only passing. The doctrine of Fatalism offers no hope. and is content to point out that preordained fate is the cause of both justice and injustice. Yet it has reconciled millions of Orientals to tyrannv and poverty and degradation. But these explanations are not always convincing: at times men violently reject them. and inferring that their wrongs are capable of being remedied. set their hands to strikes, riots, and revolutions.
